PLEASE READ.

In sending out these catalogues attention is called to the fact that they are the remainders of the edition, Part 2 in particular being issued the third time without revision. For this reason a number of the coins described therein have been sold from time to time, some having gone more than a year ago. However the greater portion remains, and orders can be filled for almost anything desired, but should any pieces be sold collectors will bear the above explanation in mind.

This may seem an unsatisfactory method of offering, but a catalogue of this size costs about $200 for printing and other expenses, and until well sold from or edition exhausted it does not pay to revise. However it is expected soon to revise to date and issue under one cover the various parts and supplements, making a book of about 125 pages, over 5000 items, and over $15,000 in value.

Soliciting your order for some of the many attractive items, I remain, Yours truly,

Chas. Steigerwalt,
